

stella

14 SEPTEMBER 2014

Lee, me and the Duchess of Cambridge
The triumphs and trials of
Alexander McQueen's successor

A handful of dust
Powdered 'superfood':
a fad or the future?

Why women can't parallel park
A scientist's provocative new take on the gender gap

FOOD
Totally yum plum recipes

SHOW GIRL

Eliza Cummings in her
London Fashion Week finest

Stella loves

This week's must do, see, buy

By Sonia Haria

The artist Francesca Woodman died when she was only 22 but in her short life created more than 800 ethereal portraits and abstract photographs now hailed as groundbreaking. "Francesca Woodman: Zigzag" is at Victoria Miro Mayfair, London W1. victoria-miro.com

Margaret Atwood is at her dark, fantastical best in Stone Mattress, a new collection of short stories. Bloomsbury, £18.99

The new range of calfskin tote bags by JW Anderson for Loewe are both playful and chic. We have our eye on this screen-printed stripy version. £895; 020 7499 0266

WIN THIS

We think this richly patterned Magic Forest modal-and-cashmere scarf by Karen Mabon is an absolute hoot. £125, from Liberty (liberty.co.uk)

The Cookery School at Little Portland Street in London is offering two Telegraph subscribers a day of classes, from French Pastry Making to British High Tea (worth £500 each). To enter, log on to telegraph.co.uk/subscriber