Cookery School on Little Portland Street is a, er, cookery school. But it's not just any cookery school – it's the second-most sustainable one in the country, right after the renowned River Cottage. This means that not only is the food you cook with sustainable, but what you'll learn will help you towards a more sustainable lifestyle, too. And, as you might already know, that's something that we care about a lot here at Foodism. What's more, it's got a selection of courses ranging from meat and poultry to vegetarian and knife skills – if you were looking for a place to sharpen up, this is it.
