

The best cooking classes, courses and workshops in London and the UK

Explore our round-up of the best cookery classes in London and the UK - with something for every ability and every budget

Updated on 21 August 2019 • Written By Caroline Bradley

Whether you want to hone your own cooking skills, take a fun class with friends or discover the perfect team-building task that everyone will enjoy, we have rounded up the best cooking classes in London. From gourmet workshops to fun chocolate making classes, there is something for every budget and every ability.

One Day Masterclass with Lunch to Learn the secrets of Michel Roux Jrs Kitchen at Sauce by the Langham

Biscuit connoisseurs the Biscuiteers offer a few different classes but our favourite has to be their 'icing lates' - this is an evening icing class that caters for small groups. You will never be in a class of more than ten people so there is plenty of opportunity to receive one on one tuition and you also will be welcomed with a glass of prosecco on arrival. Their experts will guide you through the skills and techniques you will need to ice like a pro and you will leave the class with five biscuits you have iced yourself.

Where is the class? Cafes at Notting Hill or Northcote Road

How much does it cost? Prices vary by class

How do I book? Book direct with the Biscuiteers

Half Day Course at the Raymond Blanc Cookery School at Belmond Le Manoir

If you want to venture out of the city and into the countryside then head to the glorious Belmond Le Manoir hotel in Oxfordshire. As you drive through the honeyed-stone gate posts you will be stepping into Raymond Blanc's world of phenomenal cooking. You will experience an intensive three hour cookery course from the hotel's head tutor Mark Peregrine - a chef with more than 30 years of experience and a serious passion for cooking and teaching. Under his expert guidance you will create a delicious three-course meal with fantastic and fresh ingredients. Courses can be tailored for all levels and abilities so you can build on your existing skills - all while in beautiful surroundings. You will also receive light refreshments of tea and coffee throughout your course.

Where is the class? Belmond Le Manoir Hotel, Oxford

How much does it cost? £185 per person

How do I book? Book through Virgin Experience Days

Cookery School at Little Portland Street

The Cookery School at Little Portland Street offers classes and short courses that have a heavy focus on straight-forward cooking and hands-on training. Removing jargon and technical terms from cooking, their classes can be tailored for all abilities and you can choose from a range of cuisines and cooking styles.

Where is the class? Cookery School at Little Portland Street

How much does it cost? Prices vary by class